“ The world is a little less brighter today. How can I walk into William's Pharmacy without you behind the counter and your "Whatch-ya need Ronda?" ' and whether it was human or animal, you knew exactly where it was! My childhood memories of you when I would visit Sherry are very special to me, I never could understand how you managed to always have the most perfect hair in the world. Your memory will live on with Jerry and in your children and grandchildren. They will keep your memory alive and tell stories of you that will never fade, get dusty, or tired, and just might bring a laugh from deep inside. Thank you for always accepting me just the way I am and never judging my crazy side. We'll miss you Keta! Fly High and give Martha a hug for me.
